Nomination Criteria and Guidelines

The Riley Institute at Furman and the South Carolina Diversity Leaders Initiative are pleased to announce the opening of nominations for the 2019 Upstate Diversity Leadership Awards. These awards recognize individuals and organizations who exhibit leadership in promoting diversity in the Upstate.

The Upstate serves a culturally rich and diverse population and wide array of local and international organizations. These awards recognize those who are committed to supporting and sustaining an inclusive environment. This year's awards dinner will be hosted by the Greenville Chamber and the Riley Institute at Furman in partnership with Upstate Chambers on Tuesday, May 28, 2018 at the Hyatt in Greenville.

- Nominees (individuals, organizations, and businesses) should be role models in the Upstate for promoting an inclusive work or community environment and/or for championing diversity as an important individual or organizational mission.
- Nominees must be a current resident, organization, or business in the Upstate.
- The Riley Institute, the Greenville Chamber, the Spartanburg Chamber and the Anderson Chamber and their staff are not eligible for nomination.

Nominations can be submitted for ONE of the six award categories (see categories).
Self-nomination is permissible.

Deadline for submission is NOON Monday, March 18, 2019.
