

Harriet Clark Herndon currently teaches Social Studies at Dillon High School in Dillon, S.C. and is a retired administrator from Marlboro County High School in Bennettsville, S.C. A native of Bennettsville, she received her early education in the public school system of Marlboro County. She received dual Bachelor's Degrees in Honors Politics and Social Studies from St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg, N.C. and a Master's Degree in Educational Administration from Grand Canyon University in Phoenix, Arizona.

Mrs. Herndon currently serves as an inaugural member of the Richard W. Riley Institute for Teachers of Government, is a graduate of the S.C. Institute of Government at the University of South Carolina, and is an award winning speaker, having been featured on TV-13's "Bridging the Gap". Additionally, she was privileged to assist former Attorney General Travis Medlock in the "Be Free to Succeed" program while employed as a Prevention Specialist for the Marlboro County Commission on Alcohol and Other Drugs. She will serve as an SAT Reader for Prentice-Hall Company this fall.

She is an accomplished vocalist and has performed for numerous civic functions as well as a singer/actor in community and semi-professional theatre. She has also won numerous beauty and talent titles in the past, and has judged pageants on the local, state and national levels, serving also as an accredited Miss America Preliminary judge.

Mrs. Herndon has been married to her husband, Ronnie, for forty-two years, and they are the proud parents and grandparents of daughter, Angela Herndon Hanna, a professional photographer, and granddaughter, Kersey Hanna, a fifth grader at Edwards Elementary School in Chesterfield, S.C.